

2016 MTA RETIRED GATHERING

Honoring a colleague — and her activism

By Scott McLennan

The 15th annual Retired Members Gathering honored longtime MTA activist Gladys Durant, who died in June. And the gathering itself reflected her can-do spirit, as numerous retired members committed to participating in the campaign to defeat Question 2.

The event, held Sept. 28 at the Sheraton Framingham Hotel and Conference Center, also offered workshops and social opportunities, along with updates from MTA leadership.

Retired Members Committee Co-Chairs Kathleen Roberts and Richard Liston welcomed the hundreds of attendees, who in turn gave Roberts a standing ovation in recognition of her recent 102nd birthday.

Liston addressed the attendees, saying, “While we may have left our classrooms, we never left this profession — and I know you are all committed to our active members and our public school students as well.”

He highlighted a new mentoring initiative between retirees and the Student Educators Association of Massachusetts, or SEAM, and he commended the success that retirees achieved in gathering signatures last year to move the Fair Share Amendment toward the ballot in 2018. The amendment would raise revenue for public education and transportation through an additional 4 percent tax on annual income over $1 million.

RMC Co-Chairs addressing the crowd at the 2016 Retired Gathering.

Liston urged his fellow retirees to be involved in the Save Our Public Schools campaign to defeat ballot Question 2, which seeks to lift the cap on charter schools. Many heeded the call by signing up for various actions and picking up “No on 2” yard signs to display in their neighborhoods.

“There is a lot of rhetoric being presented by charter school proponents,” Liston said. “But Massachusetts public schools are the best in the country. That’s because we did a good job. We made a difference in the lives of so many students, as our active teachers currently do, and our future teachers, with our support, will continue to do.”

MTA Vice President Erik J. Champy applauded the retirees, telling them, “We stand on your shoulders. You fought the fights that have been so important to educators and students.” Further, Champy acknowledged many individuals at the gathering for nurturing his path to leadership.

MTA President Barbara Madeloni praised the professionalism of the retirees, calling them and active educators “experts in our field.”

REPORT OF THE CHAIRS

Richard Liston and Kay Roberts

RMC Co-Chairs showing their support for NO on 2 at the 2016 Retired Gathering.

For the 15th year, the Retired Gathering was a success. On September 28th, almost 200 registered attendees gathered in Framingham at the Sheraton to attend the 2016 MTA Retired Gathering.

On behalf of the Retired Members Committee (RMC), we would like to extend our sincere appreciation to the attendees of this year's retired gathering for their generosity. This year we collected school supplies, books and recess materials for the Southbridge Education Association. The generous donations will be delivered to the Southbridge Education Association after Thanksgiving. Thank you so much for making the lives of these students a little bit better.

This edition of the Reporter has the Nomination form for the Retired Members Committee. See page 7. That election will take place at the MTA Annual Meeting, which is scheduled for May 19 and 20 of next year. Please note the date for submission of the Nomination Form, which is March 3, 2017.

On October 26 and 27, 2016, the MTA RMC convened to hold its first-ever, strategic planning retreat at the Holiday Inn in Taunton, Massachusetts. Over one and a half days, the RMC discussed issues such as bylaw and policy changes to be brought forward at the 2017 Annual Meeting, organizing ideas and planned its work for the 2016-17 academic year. The Strategic Planning Retreat was a huge success, with the Committee discussing ways to increase our membership and visibility within MTA, and in so doing, increase our power and influence. One outcome of the Retreat was a decision that the 2017 Retired Gathering will be a two day event, with a gala banquet the evening of October 17, 2017 and workshops on October 17 and 18, 2017. Please encourage other retired members to attend our MTA events throughout the year. We should be announcing the Retired Breakfast dates and locations very soon. As was stated at the Gathering, we may have left our classrooms, but we have not left the profession. Our voices and insight are important within MTA and, moreover, within the community at large. Our wisdom can have a positive impact on future decisions.

On behalf of the MTA Retired Members Committee, we wish the best to you and your families as we enter this holiday season and wish you the very best for the remainder of 2016. ■

In opposing Question 2, she said, “we have an amazing opportunity to be leaders in protecting public education.”

Executive Director-Treasurer Ann Clarke wore two hats — literally — as she addressed the crowd.

First she donned a “Save Our Public Schools” cap to emphasize the MTA’s commitment to the No on 2 campaign. Then, as the audience applauded, she took off that hat and put on a cap bearing the trademark “H” of the Hillary Clinton presidential campaign. Clarke noted the importance of both defeating the ballot question and making sure that Clinton prevails over Donald Trump in the election.

Presentation of the Honor Our Own award is a highlight of the gathering each year. Typically, the Retired Members Committee solicits nominations. But this year the committee itself decided to recognize Durant, who died June 4 at the age of 75.

Durant taught for more than 30 years in the Attleboro Public Schools and remained active in both her local association and the MTA throughout retirement.

“She was one of a kind, a force of nature,” Liston said.

Durant’s son, Michael, accepted the award and described his mother as someone who was passionate about social justice and education.

“Whenever there was an election, she made sure we knew how important it was to vote,” he said, adding with a laugh: “And my mother always made sure we knew whom or what to vote for.”

Durant was an active member of the Retired Members Committee at the time of her death. She held other leadership positions in the MTA and had received the Honor Our Own award in 2010.

A couple of annual attractions were in full swing again this year. Mary Gilmore, a former MTA president, was stationed once again at a table featuring a fund-raising raffle for the Voice of Teachers for Education.

Another staple of the event is the donation of school supplies to a district with a high level of need. This year, attendees donated several boxes’ worth to the Southbridge Public Schools. ■

THE NEA-RA IS COMING TO BOSTON

And you can get involved

The 2017 NEA Annual Meeting and Representative Assembly, the largest democratic deliberative assembly in the world, is coming to Boston. This means roughly 8,000 delegates from across the country — NEA members from all segments of the education profession — will converge on our city from June 30 to July 5. There are many opportunities for MTA members to get involved and experience the RA firsthand.

There are many ways to get involved.

NEA's Annual Meeting brings approximately 15,000 people — delegates and their families, exhibitors, press, visitors, and Association staff — into the host city for a week of intensive activities.

MTA is looking for volunteers for the 2017 Host Committee. The Host Committee chairs are organizing volunteers to work on one of five Host Committee sub committees to facilitate the smooth operation of the NEA Annual Meeting. NEA members who accept positions on the Host Committee cannot serve as delegates or officers to the RA during the Annual Meeting.

The Host Committee Chair is Julia Monteiro Johnson and the Treasurer is Richard Liston.

MTA Awarded Grant to Create Retired Member/Student Member Mentoring Program

On October 25, 2016, MTA was notified by the NEA Center for Organizing that it had been awarded a grant for $4,195.50 to develop a Retired Member/Student Member Mentoring Program. Program development will begin as soon as the election has concluded with the goal of launching the Mentoring Program in fall of 2017.

Former MTA President Steve Gorrie was cheered by the crowd at Fenway Park as a Boston Red Sox Most Valuable Educator on Saturday June 18 game at Fenway Park. The MTA Most Valuable Educator Program provides the opportunity to recognize All-Star educators prior to Saturday home games over the summer. Gorrie and other MVE winners are selected by the Red Sox based on nominations from the public, each of which must include an essay explaining the reason recognition is deserved. They are lauded at Red Sox Saturday home games. Anyone can nominate an outstanding teacher, education support professional, school staff member, coach or volunteer by writing about his or her contribution to student achievement.

MEDICARE UPDATE

The Social Security Administration recently announced that, in 2017, beneficiaries will receive a cost-of-living adjustment of 0.3 percent. But about 70 percent of beneficiaries will not see any increase in their Social Security benefits because every dollar of the increase will go to pay for higher Medicare premiums. What will happen to the other 30 percent of beneficiaries depends on the mood of the Congress.

Typically, the Medicare Part B premium is increased each year in line with Part B per capita expenditures. In the absence of any complicating factors, the 2016 monthly premium would have increased from $104.90 in 2015 to $120.70. The law, however, contains a “hold harmless” provision that limits the dollar increase in the premium to the dollar increase in an individual’s Social Security benefit. Because the COLA for Social Security benefits was zero for 2016, premiums did not increase for the 70 percent of beneficiaries protected by the hold harmless provision and they continued to pay $104.90.

Although the Medicare Part B premium has not been officially announced for 2017, at the time of this writing, reports suggest that, if the hold harmless provision did not apply, the premium would be about the same in 2017 as in 2016 – that is, about $120. Beneficiaries protected by the hold harmless provision, however, will see their Medicare Part B premium go up only by the dollar increase in their Social Security benefit.

The really interesting question is what’s going to happen to the 30 percent of beneficiaries not protected by the hold harmless provision. These include new enrollees during the year (5 percent); enrollees who do not receive a Social Security benefit check (3 percent); enrollees with high incomes, who are subject to the income-related premium adjustment (6 percent); and dual Medicare-Medicaid beneficiaries, whose full premiums are paid by state Medicaid programs (19 percent). (Some overlap exists between the categories, which explains why the numbers add up to slightly more than 30 percent.)

In 2016, the unprotected group faced increases as high as 50 percent, in part to make up for what the protected 70 percent weren’t paying. But in October last year, Congress and the President agreed on a two-year budget deal that held the increases to 16 percent in 2016. So the basic premium for the unprotected group rose to $121.80, and much higher for those with income-related premiums. But the protection technically would apply to 2017 only if it were another year of zero Social Security COLA. Who knows what will happen in the face of a very small COLA. ■
